

Denver Firm Teams Up With Rebuilding Together

On June 16, 2012, a team of more than twenty volunteers from the law firm of Holland & Hart LLP—including attorneys, law firm staff, and their family members—participated in a service project coordinated in conjunction with Rebuilding Together Metro Denver. Rebuilding Together is a nonprofit organization dedicated to helping low-income seniors, veterans, and people with disabilities live in safe and healthy homes.

The volunteers helped renovate and repair the home of an 89-year-old resident of the Five Points neighborhood in Denver. The team helped install new flooring, new front porch railings, and a new kitchen sink. They also assisted with various other tasks around the house, including painting interior walls and installing a grab bar to help the resident use the stairs to the home's basement storage area.

Holland and Hart attorney Doug Abbott helps assemble the new kitchen sink and countertop.

Doug Abbott and fellow Holland & Hart attorney Dennis Brown work on constructing and installing a hand rail attached to the back porch of the home.

The Holland & Hart volunteer team.