Greg Gilbert helps public and private owners, developers, contractors, and engineers with project development, implementation, construction, and claims resolution.

To serve his client's ultimate goals, he carefully coordinates multiple legal, business, and political disciplines that are required for successful projects.

Strategic Business Advisor: Greg delivers strategic counsel to private and project owners on all aspects of construction and development. He is a founding partner of Holland and Hart's Nevada offices and served as the managing partner of the Las Vegas office from 2006 – 2013.

Litigation: Greg's practice also includes business litigation, construction litigation, professional negligence defense, products liability defense, and insurance coverage – in both state and federal courts.

EXPERIENCE

Public-Private Partnerships

Greg's development and construction practice involves:

- Drafting and negotiating complex agreements for a wide variety of projects
- Shepherding clients through all project phases – from inception, procurement, implementation, completion, and claims
- Working with local, state, and federal agencies
- Resolving project disputes, including delay and impact claims that threaten project timelines and deliverables

As part of this process, Greg drafts specialized contracts for:

- Transportation projects
- Public-private partnerships
- Design-build-operate-manage agreements
- Guaranteed energy-savings performance agreements
- EPC agreements
- Pipeline design and construction projects
- Design-build agreements
- Design and construction agreements for large hotel/casino projects
- Design and construction management agreements
