Dr. Amy Tindell is an intellectual property attorney with experience across a diverse range of industries, including pharmaceuticals, medical devices, computer programs and security, alcoholic beverages, consumer products and retail, and sporting equipment and events.

Amy focuses her practice in trademark prosecution and enforcement. She counsels clients on trademark selection and clearance, and on strategies for securing, maintaining, and enforcing their trademark portfolios, both domestically and internationally. She also assists clients on building, maintaining, and protecting client brands, copyrights, and trade secrets, and leveraging their IP assets to the highest advantage.

In addition to her trademark practice, Amy is also skilled in litigation, representing plaintiff and defendant clients in trademark, copyright, and patent matters, both in the federal courts and before the United States Patent and Trademark Office.

Before joining Holland & Hart, Amy worked as an attorney at an East Coast firm in Boston.
