Elody brings experience assisting clients at every phase of complex litigation, including cases involving defamation, trademark infringement, and matters involving fraud and shareholder disputes.

Elody has also assisted clients in the healthcare industry in compliance and licensing issues related to new facility operations and expansions, and she has counseled providers on breach of contract matters.

She rejoins Holland & Hart after participating in the firm's summer clerk program. During law school, Elody was a research assistant to Professor and Associate Dean for International and Graduate Programs Paul B. Miller on fiduciary relationship and trust topics. She was also a legal intern for the Notre Dame Law School Community Development Clinic, providing guidance to nonprofit and for-profit boards on corporate governance and compliance issues.
