Kasia advises business and individual clients on local, state, and federal tax controversy and litigation issues.

Kasia supports individuals and businesses in high-stakes tax matters, providing thoughtful and practical advice. She assists clients in the cannabis and other industries with federal tax audits, appeals, collection issues, and related litigation, including matters involving IRC Section 280E adjustments. Kasia also assists clients with state and local sales, use, and excise tax audits and protests.

Before joining Holland & Hart, Kasia was an associate at Hall Estill in Denver. Prior to embarking on her legal career, she worked in higher education, most recently as the director of student financial management at a law school.
