A seasoned litigator, clients trust Wiley to find solutions to their most contentious disputes.

With more than 40 years of legal experience, Wiley provides effective representation when the stakes are high.

Wiley has extensive experience in a variety of corporate, commercial, and finance-related litigation. He has been active in securities transactions litigation, with a focus on federal securities matters. These cases have included class actions, private offerings, accountants' liability issues, and broker-dealer matters. He has represented both companies and shareholders in derivative and valuation proceedings.

Wiley is also experienced in general contract, real estate, construction, fraud, and antitrust litigation. He has represented companies, public entities, and individuals in insurance coverage matters under first party, general liability, and D&O insurance agreements. In addition, Wiley has worked extensively on environmental litigation matters, including CERCLA responsible party and natural resource damage actions.
