Bryan is trusted by employers to provide immediate and sound advice on thorny workplace issues and, when necessary, to defend employers in wrongful termination, harassment, and discrimination claims.

His extensive and complex employment litigation experience includes jury trial success, handling significant wage and hour class actions, and EEOC administrative proceedings, in both Utah and California. He regularly counsels clients through employee relations, accommodations and leaves of absence, separations and terminations, reductions in force, employee handbooks and policies, and employment contracts, with extensive background with confidentiality, nondisclosure, non-compete, and non-solicitation provisions. Bryan is known for providing practical guidance to employers as they balance business needs and success with workforce needs and issues.

Bryan also conducts workplace investigations into employee complaints and potential harassment. He frequently conducts highly interactive public and in-house trainings, workshops, and seminars on various employment and labor related issues, including traditional harassment and discrimination prevention, legal compliance, workplace respect, and implementing legally compliant diversity, equity, and inclusion initiatives.

Bryan has broad and relevant experience with several different industries including start-up and tech companies, health and medical fields, oil, gas and mining operations, mortgage/lending institutions, temporary staffing agencies, package delivery and transportation industries, solar, and clients with large sales forces and call centers.

Bryan served as the firm's Employment and Labor Practice Group Leader from 2016 to 2019, and as a member of the firm's five-partner Management Committee from 2012 to 2014. Prior to joining the Salt Lake City office of Holland & Hart in May 2001, Bryan practiced law in Southern California. Bryan is fluent in Spanish. He is also a volunteer speaker on transracial adoptions and related adoption issues for both private and governmental entities.
