Jolly has focused on trademark and intellectual property law for 20 years and leverages years of experience at L'Oréal managing one of the largest trademark portfolios in the consumer products industry to deliver business-savvy counsel. She assists clients with the full spectrum of trademark management services, including trademark selection, clearance and branding, prosecution, registration, and enforcement.

Jolly also helps clients navigate intricate trademark and copyright licensing agreements and assists in addressing intellectual property concerns and due diligence matters in commercial and corporate transactions. Her clients include companies from the consumer, beauty, luxury goods, food and beverage, computer software, social media, publishing, and art and entertainment industries.

Clients appreciate her ability to distill complex legal and brand management issues into clear, pragmatic solutions. She is a valued partner helping clients develop and execute strategies to build brands for market growth.

Before joining Holland & Hart, Jolly practiced at an AmLaw 200 firm and served as Trademark Counsel at L'Oréal USA.
