Lance offers strategic legal advice to clients throughout all stages of the development and construction of a project.

Lance is a seasoned attorney focusing his practice on construction law and project development. He assists project owners, contractors, and subcontractors with various matters, including contracts, licensing, change orders, delays, preserving claims, and mechanics' liens, among others. He has experience in mediation, arbitration, state trial and appellate courts, and federal district courts, including all aspects of litigation through trial, particularly in relation to construction disputes and real estate disputes.

Prior to joining Holland & Hart, Lance practiced at boutique law firms in Arizona and New Mexico, focusing on a range of legal issues including project development, construction, real estate disputes, landlord-tenant disputes, land use, oil and gas compliance, and environmental compliance.
