Katelyn assists energy and natural resources clients through compliance, regulatory, and litigation challenges.

Katelyn helps clients navigate regulatory frameworks and complex litigation, with particular focus on environmental considerations that impact energy development projects.

Katelyn provides practical guidance on compliance strategies and supports clients through administrative proceedings and enforcement actions. She works with clients across the energy sector, including oil and gas, renewable energy, and mining companies, helping them address regulatory challenges while advancing their business objectives.

Before joining Holland & Hart, Katelyn served as a law clerk with the U.S. Department of Justice's Environment and Natural Resources Division, where she focused on Endangered Species Act matters, and with the U.S. Department of the Interior's Land Resources Division, providing counsel for the Bureau of Land Management. This experience gave her valuable insight into federal regulatory enforcement priorities and the operational considerations that guide federal land management decisions.
